

EntropySoft, the Content Integration Company and Enterprise Search Company xdot Announce OEM Agreement

EntropySoft's Enterprise Content Management Connectors Enhance xdot's Enterprise Search Offering

Paris, France and Münster, Germany; October 4, 2011 – EntropySoft, the content integration company, today announced a technology agreement with German search leader xdot in which they will integrate EntropySoft Connectors into the xfriend® business enterprise search product. The blending of these two offerings greatly enhances the out-of-the-box search capacities of xfriend, delivering even easier access to more unstructured data information to xdot customers.

“The EntropySoft Connectors and expertise will bring even more value to our search technology by unlocking access to a broader range of content sources for our customers,” said J.Fester, CTO at xdot GmbH. “EntropySoft’s connectors are more robust and better designed than anything else we’ve seen.”

Xdot will integrate a portfolio of more than 40 connectors for all the major enterprise content management systems. EntropySoft’s portfolio of connectors has been fully tested and proven in major, business-critical deployment projects where immediate access to enterprise application repositories is required.

“We are pleased to welcome xdot to our global partner program,” said Nicolas Maquaire, CEO and co-founder of EntropySoft. “More and more, companies chose to rely on the professionalism and dedication of connector specialists to provide optimal connectivity to their customers. The quality and breadth of connectivity is increasingly critical to our search and eDiscovery partners who understand it is an area that requires very specialized skills. At EntropySoft we strive to deliver with solid product, high quality connectivity, and deep expertise.”
